New York City

Relatively glitch-free day for voters

New York's Board Of Elections enjoyed a relatively smooth day on Tuesday, except for a minor issue with some voters not knowing their polling locations had been changed since the 2012 election.

1 Location problems "There has been a lot of confusion at the polls with people not knowing where they need to be," said Jon Sherman, a volunteer at voting rights organization Election Protection. "Because it's the city, there are a ton of [polling centers] and they have to change frequently since there is a cap for each location."

2 Misinformation problems Another issue arose when New York's progressive Working Families Party sent out an e-mail alert warning on Tuesday to voters that ballots had been set up to show gubernatorial candidate Rob Astorino twice, potentially prompting confused voters to "mistakenly vote twice for governor thinking they were voting straight down the WFP line."

3 Upside? Better tech As for looking ahead to future elections, New York took a rare opportunity to introduce a new technology to its voters on Tuesday, rolling out a pilot program that found one sixth of poll sites equipped with tablet devices on which voters could vote. METRO

Cuomo elected to four more years

New York City. Gov. Cuomo trounced Rob Astorino in bid for office.

New Yorkers have spoken, and have re-elected incumbent Democrats to the state's top positions.

Gov. Andrew Cuomo was re-elected governor with new Lieutenant Gov. Kathy Hochul. He defeated Republican candidate Rob Astorino with about 70 percent of the vote, according to unofficial preliminary numbers on Tuesday night (as of press time).

The current governor cast his ballot Tuesday morning in Mount Kisco, in Westchester County, along with his girlfriend, Sandra Lee.

Cuomo's re-election campaign reminded voters he balanced the state's budget four years in a row, and created more than 440,000 jobs. Cuomo intends to move forward his Women's Equality Act, which proposes equal pay, abortion rights and anti-discrimination measures.

Cuomo said Tuesday "we began our journey four years ago" to return the state to "fiscal stability and responsibility" and "restore New York as the progressive capital of the nation."

Tuesday night, Mayor Bill de Blasio spoke at Cuomo's re-election party, saying New York voters today realized grassroots Democratic efforts, and sent a message that "ultraconservatives" and Tea party candidates "are never going to win the day in New York state."

In other races, Attorney General Eric Schneiderman, was projected to win re-election with 72 percent of the vote according to preliminary numbers (13.2 percent reporting). New York State Comptroller Thomas DiNapoli was also projected to win his third term as state comptroller with 72 percent of the vote, according to preliminary numbers (13.2 percent reporting).

Incumbent Michael Grimm, who has also been indicted on 20 federal counts, including fraud, was projected to win re-election to a third term as U.S. Congressman representing Staten Island and Brooklyn's 11th District with about 52 percent of the vote, early numbers showed (about 45 percent reporting). Democrat Domenic Recchia, who previously served on NYC council, challenged Grimm.

New Yorkers voted to approve three ballot measures that would create a 10-person commission to redraw state and congressional districts, allow the legislature to send out bills electronically and allow the state to issue bonds up to $2 billion to fund school technology.

Election. Voters cast ballots across the five boroughs in contentious midterm elections

Voters across the city turned out to their polling stations on Tuesday to vote for their choices for governor, attorney general and other races.

Evel Perez, a Board of Elections coordinator for Manhattan's Civic Court site, said that voting started early and was heavy through the rest of the morning.

"It's been busy and that's how we like it," Perez said.

A steady stream of voters arrived at the downtown Civic Court location throughout the rest of the day.

Lee Epstein, 87, said that he's voted in every election in the city that has taken place for the past 50 years. "It's the way you show that you control the destiny of this country. It's the only way we have," he said. DAN BUYANOVSKY

300K

The estimated 300,000 daily commuters who pass through Fulton Center can also look forward to natural light reflected in through a 79-foot-tall atrium, and additional entrances.

After years of construction and delays, Fulton Center will officially open to commuters this coming weekend.

MTA and federal transit officials will hold an opening ceremony for the transit center on Sunday. MTA Chairman & CEO Thomas F. Prendergast, New York City Transit President Carmen Bianco and MTA Capital Construction President Michael Horodniceanu are set to attend the opening.

The $1.4 billion project, which promises to better connect 11 subway lines, was originally scheduled to finish in 2007.

The center serves the 2, 3, 4, 5, A, C, E, J, Z and R lines, as well as the N on late nights.

What is Stylish Sophisticate, the publication you're editor-in-chief of?
Stylish Sophisticate is a professional style fashion magazine. There are a lot of fashion magazines out there, but not a lot of them dedicate much time talking about how to put together an outfit that's appropriate for corporate America.

You're also a third-year law student! How do you have time for both?
Being a law student is different from having a nine-to-five job. I can do my work on the weekends or evenings.

What about meetings? Do you mostly communicate through email?
Yes, we do a lot of emailing. We have a few team meetings in person and I communicate with everyone a lot on the phone.

Do you think you'll still be able to work on Stylish

Diya Liu / PROVIDED

Sophisticate when you're a full-time lawyer?
I do. At the beginning, I was doing almost everything on my own, but that's not the case anymore because there are more people on the team.

Editing is different than law, so it must provide a nice break.

I don't see my work for Stylish Sophisticate as a job. I see it as more of a hobby. I learn so much from the professional females I talk to. It's really more fun than work.

Republicans roll up early election wins

A voter gestures as Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell votes in the midterm elections at Bellarmine University in Louisville, Kentucky. / GETTY IMAGES

Obama. The White House tried to play down the prospect of sharp changes in strategy after the election.

Republicans struck powerful first blows in U.S. congressional elections on Tuesday in their drive to control the U.S. Senate and dramatically tip the balance of power away from President Barack Obama and his Democrats.

Obama's low job approval rating, partisan gridlock in Washington and a U.S. economy that is not growing broadly enough to help many in the middle class were major issues confronting voters in elections for 36 senators, 36 state governors and all 435 members of the House of Representatives.

In the Senate races, Republican challenger Tom Cotton defeated Democratic incumbent Mark Pryor in Arkansas, television networks projected, despite frantic get-out-the-vote efforts by former President Bill Clinton, who hails from Arkansas.

Cotton's win, along with victories by Republicans Shelley Moore Capito in West Virginia and Mike Rounds in South Dakota, gave Republicans three of the six seats they need to gain control of the Senate as of press time.

In another boost for Republicans, Sen. Republican leader Mitch McConnell of Kentucky won his re-election battle, fending off Democrat Alison Lundergan Grimes in a race that had been close for months until McConnell pulled away in the polls in recent days. REUTERS

Roman Catholic Church. Official condemns Maynard's suicide

A Vatican bioethics official on Tuesday condemned the death by assisted suicide of Brittany Maynard, a terminally ill 29-year-old who ended her life over the weekend, as an undignified "absurdity."

"This woman [took her own life] thinking she would die with dignity, but this is the error," Monsignor Ignacio Carrasco de Paula, head of the Pontifical Academy for Life, told the Italian news agency Ansa.

Maynard, who was diagnosed in January with a brain tumor and had announced plans to take medication to die when her pain became unbearable, had become the face of the right-to-die movement ahead of her death. REUTERS

Vanity Fair

Jolie 'open' to pursuing life in politics

Academy Award-winning actress Angelina Jolie is "open" to pursuing a life in politics, diplomacy or public service, she told Vanity Fair magazine.

Jolie, who won a Best

Supporting Actress Oscar for her role in "Girl, Interrupted," has already turned her hand to directing. Her latest film behind the camera, "Unbroken," about Olympic runner, World War II airman and prisoner of war Louis Zamperini, is set to open on Dec. 25.

The wife of actor Brad Pitt and a special envoy to the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) said that her work as a humanitarian has made her conscious of the fact that politics have to be considered as an option. "Because if you really want to make an extreme change, then you have a responsibility," she told the magazine in an excerpt from an interview published online on Tuesday.

"But I honestly don't know in what role I would be more useful — I am conscious of what I do for a living, and that [could] make it less possible." REUTERS

Forbes. Beyonce is the highest paid woman in music for 2014

With estimated earnings of $115 million, more than double what she pulled in last year, Beyonce is the highest paid woman in music in 2014, Forbes magazine said on Tuesday.

The huge sum, most of which came from her world tour, propelled Beyonce, 33, from fourth place last year and put her firmly ahead of pop star Taylor Swift, 24, with $64 million, who jumped up one spot from last year to No. 2.

Pop singer Pink, 35, climbed up from No. 8 in 2013 to third with $52 million.

The R&B singer's self-titled album released last December and endorsement deals pushed her earnings up further assuring her the top spot.

Barbados-born Rihanna, 26, with $48 million and Katy Perry, 30, who earned an estimated $40 million, rounded out the top 5 on the annual list.

Madonna, 56, who ranked No. 1 last year, failed to make the top 10 in 2014.

Forbes compiled the list after estimating pre-tax income calculated for the 12 months from June 2013 to 2014 based on record sales, concert tickets, touring information merchandise sales and interviews with concert promoters, lawyers and managers. REUTERS

Feet Hurt? Bunions? Hammertoes? Heel Pain?

Platelet Rich Plasma Therapy (PRP)

A new approach for treating Tendon Injuries for the Achilles, Tendonitis and Plantar Fasciitis (Heel and Arch Pain)

Take The Foot Health Checkup

- My toenails are streaked, discolored and thickened.
- The sides of my toenails dig into the skin and hurt.
- I have a large bump behind my big toe (or little toe) which is always red.
- I get an extremely painful "cramp" in the area of my third and fourth toes when wearing shoes.
- My toes aren't straight— they are all cocked-up, bent and hurt.
- I have painful calluses on the ball of my foot which keep building up.
- I have corns on my toes which get thick no matter what shoe size I wear.
- The bottom of my heel hurts all day, but it's worse when I step out of bed in the morning.
- I have cramps in my legs which always happen when I walk the same distance.
- My ankles are swollen most of the time.
- My feet are always dry and scaly — sometimes they itch.
- My feet just hurt all over when I stand or walk a lot.
- I have numbness, burning, infection, persistent pain, skin rash, or open sores.

OMG! The FORTIS exoskeleton outfits the user with super strength and endurance

From "Aliens" to "Avatar" to "Iron Man," robotic exoskeleton suits have been a staple in sci-fi action battlewear. Now, this cinematic fantasy has become a reality thanks to a super-strength outfit that could increase users' productivity by 20 percent. Patricia Aelker, program manager at Lockheed Martin, the defense contractor behind the gear, explains to Metro how the exoskeleton transforms the average handyman into a superhuman worker.

Where did the idea to make the FORTIS exoskeleton come from?

We have been working on exoskeleton research and development for more than five years. Originally we began our research for assisting a soldier with carrying heavy equipment over long distances. The same principles of how the body works and expends energy can be applied to exoskeleton development for use in industrial settings.

So, this gadget can convert anybody into a superhuman?

The FORTIS — meaning "strength" and "endurance" in Latin — transfers the weight of heavy tools to the ground. It supports the tool so that an operator only needs to guide it, not bear the weight of it. It is an unpowered system that distributes the weight across hip, knee and ankle joints while preserving the user's natural movements. Workers using riveters, grinders, sandblasters or other large, heavy tools can operate longer with reduced muscle fatigue while still being mobile and flexible.

Rihanna goes for shock value with shockingly brief answers for Elle

PAOLA KUDACKI FOR ELLE

Rihanna graces the cover of Elle magazine for the fourth time for its December issue. She sat down with the magazine for a Q&A session full of evidence that Rihanna truly is the Ernest Hemingway of pop stars, using two words where someone like Miley Cyrus would probably use 12. But even with such brevity, her answers are illuminating — terrified of childbirth, loves c's "Greatest Hits." Here are some of her more memorable sound bites.

The answer we don't really believe:
Elle: What do people misunderstand about you?

Rihanna: I'm shy.

The answer that's not such a huge surprise:
Elle: What's your mantra?
Rihanna: "F— bitches, get money!"

The answer that solidifies her geek cred:
Elle: The last time you were starstruck?
Rihanna: When I met Aaron Paul at the Spike awards.

Most unintentionally cringe-inducing answer:
Elle: If you were a piece of jewelry, what would it be?
Rihanna: I'd be a choker!

digital — so in honor of "Interstellar," check out "Inception Retold by Mom," from YouTube user pixelspersecond and, naturally, his mom. We'll just let her explain it. But just know that Matt Damon was really good in it.

Between the Beyonce album info leaks, Angelina Jolie considering political office and the Katy Perry-Taylor Swift feud, maybe we forgot to keep an eye on Miley Cyrus. Hey, it happens. So what's she been doing while the attention has been elsewhere? Snagging herself a Schwarzenegger. Cyrus is reportedly dating Patrick Schwarzenegger, son of the Governorator and Maria Shriver, according to E! News. The new couple were seen together on a recent night out — as well as the next morning at Schwarzenegger's apartment. Ooooh! Apparently Schwarzenegger likes to play the long game, though. In a 2011 Details magazine profile, he said of his dating life, "My eye, though, is on Miley." This is either adorable or creepy. Or adorably creepy.

It's the great pumpkin, Ariana Grande

MORE GIFTS? I'M GOOD, THANKS.
GETTY IMAGES

Sometimes a fan loves Ariana Grande so much that she has to call the cops on him. At least that was what happened when Tim Normandin, a 29-year-old man from Lowell, Massachusetts, didn't heed her record company's request that he stop sending Grande outlandish gifts, according to TMZ. Among the tokens of his affection? Eight Yankee Candle Company candles, calendars featuring puppies and kittens, a $200 anklet from Kay Jewelers and, best of all, a 42 1/2-pound pumpkin, which is apparently not the way to a pop star's heart after all. Good to know for next time!

These are some delicious dumplings, according to Yelper Michael C., who took this pic at China North Dumpling. Yelper Shannon W. finds watching the staff make these quite entertaining. / MICHAEL C., YELP

The Weekly Yelp. The very best dumplings Manhattan has to offer

Feel that chill in the air? We do too. It's perfect dumpling weather. Whether fried or filled with delicious savory soup, we've got a tasty guide to some of Manhattan's finest Chinese comfort foods.

Lam Zhou Handmade Noodle

144 E. Broadway, Lower East Side

The soup noodles with dumplings are awesome. Great broth. It's the only place I've been where I finished up all the broth and didn't feel super thirsty afterward and down a gallon of water from the MSG. Brothy, beefy goodness. KEVIN C.

China North Dumpling

27 Essex St., Suite A, Lower East Side

Can't go wrong with their dumplings, but the homemade kimchi and sauteed bok choy shouldn't be missed. Considering canceling my cable and just watching the staff make dumplings because it's very entertaining. SHANNON W.

Shu Jiao Fu Zhou

118 Eldridge St., Lower East Side

Man, the dumplings were translucent and cooked perfectly, just add a splash of soy sauce and

mmm. The meat-to-dough ratio was perfect. Damn. MARTIN W.

Prosperity Dumpling

46 Eldridge St., Chinatown

Ten dumplings for $2.50? Yes, please. And 10 is usually plenty. I've also ordered 50 frozen dumplings for a mere $9, and those bad boys can last you quite some time, making them a perfect lazy night dinner.

Where to eat when your +1 needs a booster seat

While there are restaurants on every corner, not all are family-friendly — and nobody wants to deal with a meltdown in the middle of a meal. If you want to have a good time without worrying about your kids getting fussy, give these places a whirl.

Ellen's Stardust Diner

1650 Broadway. Many of the talented waitstaff at Ellen's waiting for their big break and practice their stagecraft while bringing your order. The atmosphere is loud, friendly and entertaining — you could be serenaded by the next Idina Menzel. Sandwiches and salads start at $15, and the kids menu is $10.50. Adult milkshakes with alcohol are $10.95, like the Mudslide with Kahlua.

Bierhaus

712 Third Ave. Kids under 10 eat free on Sundays from noon to 9 p.m. and families get 10 percent off the bill. Monday through Thursday, groups of eight or more also get 10 percent off their total. Weekend brunch (Saturdays noon-3 p.m., Sundays all day) is $15.95 and includes a half-liter of beer or unlimited mimosas. The kids menu is $4.99 every day. They usually have live music to add to the festivities, so no one will hear the kids yelling!

Big Daddy's

Three locations. This place serves up awesome burgers, shakes and tater tots with a 1950s diner vibe. Appetizers are $6-$10 and burgers start at $12. Monday through Friday from 4-7 p.m. beer, wine and specialty cocktails are half-price; on Thursdays beer is half-price all day. The $10 kids menu includes a drink and fries.

'Interstellar' needs to be seen on film

Movies. You really have to view this space-aged film the old-fashioned way.

Wednesday marks a milestone: A film is being released on film. "Interstellar" hits theaters today — just not even close to all of them. That may seem odd, given that it's one of the most highly anticipated movies of the year: the latest from brainy blockbuster-maker Christopher Nolan, with Oscar winners Matthew McConaughey and Anne Hathaway.

Yet the only theaters getting it are the ones that never threw out their film projectors. Starting today, you can see "Interstellar" in good, old-fashioned, grainy and dangerously combustible 35mm as well as super-sized 70mm IMAX.

The rest of the country's multiplexes — the ones that converted entirely to digital, which is nearly all of them — don't get it until Friday.

This bold move is a strong push-back against the digital wave that has almost entirely consumed modern movie watching. In 2010, most theaters switched — at great cost — to DCP (Digital Cinema Package), a purely computerized system. Instead of bulky, expensive-to-ship film reels, movies were mere files with a password to unlock. Unlike film, they would never scratch, rot or burn up. All a projectionist had to do was hit a button.

But the files could get corrupted or deleted. And while it's nice to have sparklingly clean images, they can be too bright. As Quentin Tarantino — like Nolan, another celluloid zealot — once put it, digital projection is like "watching television in public."

"Interstellar" indeed looks great on 70mm. The film is about McConaughey and Hathaway searching through the cosmos for a planet to replace the dying Earth, and its early scenes on Earth are sometimes impossibly dark.

But once it gets to space, you can not only see the majesty, but feel it. None of it looks digital, not even the planets our heroes visit.

Nolan shot one of them in Iceland, and it really does resemble an alien land. Beyond that, it even looks real. It looks like film.

By the numbers

249

Remaining theaters in the nation that can show 35mm and 70mm film.

"Interstellar" opens on film today before being released on digital Friday. Go to www.metro.us to read our review and see where the film is playing today. / MELINDA SUE GORDON, PARAMOUNT, WARNER BROTHERS

Directors who ditch digital

Nolan isn't the only prestigious member of the film club

Christopher Nolan isn't the only one still holding the torch for celluloid. Quentin Tarantino will be releasing 70mm prints of his next film, "The Hateful Eight." Two years ago Paul Thomas Anderson's "The Master" was shipped out in 70mm prints, and his new "Inherent Vice" played the New York Film Festival on 35mm. Others include Wes Anderson, Rian Johnson ("Looper") and Alex Ross Perry ("Listen Up Philip").

A peek at the condominium J. Lo and Chelsea Clinton call home

Real estate. The Whitman at 21 E. 26th St. has only four high-end units.

Imagine this: Pop sensation Jennifer Lopez pulls up in a chauffeur-driven limo in front of the boutique condominium building where she lives — maybe she's just returning from a world tour — while former first daughter Chelsea Clinton walks out of the shiny lobby with her husband and newborn daughter in tow.

Or maybe picture this: Hedge fund manager John Silvetz bumps into NAS-CAR's Jeff Gordon in the lobby, greeting the building's full-time doorman on the way to his quick workout at the private gym on the lower level.

Welcome to The Whitman

Jennifer Lopez is the most recent resident to join the small — yet noteworthy — community at The Whitman, a condo conversion by David Mitchell's Mitchell Holdings at 21 E. 26th St. overlooking Madison Square Park. While the landmarked building only has four units — all designed by architect Jeffrey Cole — the amenities resemble those of a much larger building: a 24-hour doorman, a private gym and storage units.

"It's unheard of," said Douglas Elliman's Dina Lewis, who, along with colleague Melanie Lazenby, sold Clinton her 5,000-square-foot, four-bedroom pad for $10.5 million last March.

Every unit spans a full floor and has a private foyer with private keyed elevator access.

The building's residents use the units as their primary homes rather than as pieds-a-terre, Lewis said. Sales launched in February 2013 and the three non-penthouse units sold very quickly, Lewis said.

The building was built in 1924 and originally served as a showroom and headquarters of a fabric importer. In 2011, Mitchell bought the building from the Plumbers Union for $13 million and converted it into condos.

Below, take a look at what it cost two members of the building's jet set to move into The Whitman.

Jennifer Lopez: For a sprawling 6,500-square-foot, two-story duplex penthouse on the fifth and sixth floors, J. Lo paid $22 million earlier this month. The penthouse includes two staircases, two living rooms and two washer-dryer units, as well as 3,000 square feet of outdoor terrace space divided over two levels.

Chelsea Clinton and Marc Mezvinsky: The former first daughter and her husband bought the 4,967-square-foot unit on the fourth floor for $9.25 million in July 2013.

Stress-free living

Forget PowerBars — did you know that you get energy from your home? Christa O'Leary, author of "Home in Harmony: Designing an Inspired Life," utilizes her background in psychology and interior design to transform your over-cluttered digs into a sanctuary.

MOLLY CONGDON

Turn off your autopilot

Are you guilty of not making your bed? If running out of the house with pillows and sheets scattered is something you've become accustomed to, it's time to make a conscious change. "People don't realize this, but 80 percent of our daily thoughts and actions are done out of habit," O'Leary says. "Being aware of this is key. In order to see some changes in your home, you have to discard your bad tendencies and replace them with beneficial ones, which will inspire better living."

Shop wisely

"All of the products you bring into your home have a direct impact on the function of your body and your vitality and vibrancy," says O'Leary. "Even the cleaning products you're using have a direct impact on your health." Because of this, she suggests going for organic and natural cleaners.

Choose paint carefully

Who knew our wall color could have such an impact on our actions? "Red actually increases aggression and our energy level, and physiologically it increases your heart rate and makes you hungry," O'Leary explains. "So if you are trying to lose weight, red would be the worst color to paint your kitchen." O'Leary's home is full of "grounding colors," such as beiges and grays. "You have to figure out what will support you," she says.

Pull the plug

Turn off your iPhone, iPad and laptop before you sit down at the dinner table. "Technology helps with our efficiency and effectiveness. But on the flip side, people can connect with us 24/7, and we're inundated with a level of urgency," says O'Leary. "Unplug tech for a while and make it habitual to say, 'OK, after 8 p.m. I'm shutting off all technology.' Give yourself that reprieve."

Clear clutter

When you walk through the door after a long day, do you feel relief or do you feel stressed because you have yet to go through the magazines that are scattered across the floor? "The first thing to do within your home is to take care of the clutter, because it weighs on our unconscious mind," says O'Leary. "Go through those cluttered spaces and start there. You want your home to nurture you, not drain your energy."

Now open. Madewell debuts its first Brooklyn outpost

Madewell always felt like the hip, Brooklyn-based little sister to J.Crew's preppy Manhattanite, so it's no surprise that the brand finally opened its first outpost in the borough — in Williamsburg, natch.

And like J.Crew, which debuted its first BK location two months earlier, Madewell is playing nice with its neighbors.

"Williamsburg was a no-brainer for us, but it was important that as we moved in we celebrated the community," says Somsack Sikhounmuong, head of design.

One way was to invite local artists to create exclusive products for the store's opening. These include nature-inspired gold jewelry by Thursday-born, indigo ceramic planters by Freundeskreis and limited-edition scents by NOVA.

The Madewell team also created a guide highlighting their favorite local spots. Read what made Sikhounmuong's list and what he expects to see on L train riders soon.

What do you love most about the new Brooklyn store?

The size. It's a bit smaller than our other stores, which gives it an intimacy that I like. We really tried to maintain a lot of the original brickwork, which was too special to cover up. The two skylights are also amazing. To finish the space, we hung original vintage music posters around the store, some from the eighties and early nineties. They are a nod to the amazing music scene in Williamsburg.

What Madewell items will the locals love?

Our transport tote is great for commuting, very L train-friendly. And one of our jumpsuits is great to dance in.

What are your favorite neighborhood spots?

RabbitHole for brunch, Toby's for coffee and Pilgrim Surf + Supply for shopping. TINA CHADHA

Health notes. In wake of Brittany Maynard's death, explore both sides of assisted suicide

The death last weekend of 29-year-old Brittany Maynard, who chose to end her life after being diagnosed with terminal brain cancer, has reignited the national debate about assisted suicide. But is the procedure, in the words of the American Medical Association's code of ethics, "fundamentally incompatible with the physician's role as healer"? It's already legal in five states — should it expand to allow the terminally ill "death with dignity"? "Legalize Assisted Suicide," an Intelligence Squared U.S. forum taking place Nov. 13 at the Kaufman Center (129 W. 67th St.), will explore both sides of this issue with four debaters: philosopher Peter Singer, Columbia University professor Andrew Solomon, palliative care physician Baroness Ilora Finlay and MacLean Center for Clinical Medical Ethics associate director Dr. Daniel Sulmasy. Tickets are $40, $12 for students;

Celebs imagine an AIDS-free world

Moleskine's new collaboration with the (RED) campaign, which donates a portion of product sales to the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, asked a big question of some big celebrities, and their answers have been turned into a gallery at the Park Hyatt hotel (153 W. 57th St.). Rapper Ryan Lewis and Twitter founder Biz Stone, among others, penned a handwritten (or, in some cases, drawn) answer to how they would fight AIDS. The exhibit, #oneREDday, is on display now through Dec. 2. www.oneredday.com

Focus. Offtime gets to know what you do on your phone, then shuts it down (for a while).

Gadget addicts know this too well: No amount of willpower will ever get our prying eyes and hyperactive thumbs away from our smartphone screens. So how about an app that will break the cycle for us?

Offtime blocks certain phone features like email, texts or social media for set periods of the day. But it doesn't block everything, or pick random apps to lock down.

"It shows which activities and apps are used often and with which contacts you interact the most," says Michael Dettbarn, co-

Remember paying attention to the people you're actually with? Do that! / GETTY IMAGES founder of the Berlin-based developer. "Considering we can't imagine our everyday lives without our mobile devices anymore, the question is not IF we should use our smartphone but rather HOW."

Besides the obnoxious habit of paying as much, if not more, attention to our phones even when there is a real friend or colleague sitting across from us, Dettbarn says our devices are fundamentally reorganizing our priorities — and we don't even know it.

"The way we're using apps and communication on our phones today is not obvious, and it's causing emotional and psychological pressure on a subconscious level," he says. "We're losing more and more focus and can't differentiate between the bits of information and the kinds of functionality that really matter to us."

Enter Offtime, which blocks calls, texts and notifications for a chosen period of time. You can still choose people whose messages will be allowed through, but the idea is to refocus you on the task at hand, whether that's work, family or friends. To help, intuitive analytics track your app usage, showing you what you're doing, when you're doing it, and how long you're doing it for. The app lets you set what features, apps and contacts will be disabled or blocked for the duration of the "offtime." You can set a custom auto-reply to be sent during your break and see what you missed when it's over. Who knows, Dettbarn says, maybe you'll start a trend of greater acceptance among your contacts to get off the grid.

But don't think of it as unplugging — if anything, the app means to foster greater connectivity in your life.

"It's not about the decision to be either online or offline," Dettbarn says. "It's about customizing the way you want to be connected for each context of your daily life."

Offtime is free, though currently only available for Android devices. Visit www.offtime.co.

Pedestrians aggravated by cyclists

Re: 'Oppression against cyclists is great travesty of our age' (Metro, Nov. 4) Lawless cyclists should be targeted by police over pedestrians because bicycles are vehicles that regularly travel over the speed limit set by the city. "Lawless" pedestrians don't do the same. Jaywalking pedestrians are not going to crush another human being the way cyclists so often do. AMY BALDWIN, VIA EMAIL

It's bad enough that I have to get cut off almost daily by cyclists (while in a crosswalk no less), but now I have to read about their "oppression" in Metro. Get a grip, Jack — cyclists are going 10 to 15 miles an hour, while pedestrians are going about 2 to 3 mph. We're just trying to get to work without getting hit by a car or bike. I don't have an issue outside of the city, but while trying to commute, cyclists are just a nuisance! M. DISCOLO, VIA EMAIL

Pedestrians are usually not bad or lawless but are too often distracted by electronic devices. If someone is walking and talking using an earphone while eating something and slurping a beverage, how can they be expected to pay attention to traffic? GEORGE CHRISTIAN JR., VIA EMAIL

Fighting words

"I'm no longer in Brooklyn. Unfortunately they keep talking about it. I don't. ... Now, if it was me and him playing one-on-one on the court, that would be fine."

Jason Kidd, Bucks head coach, responding to Nets owner Mikhail Prokhorov's comments Monday saying, "Don't let the door hit you where the good lord split you."

FireJohnIdzik.com buys billboards near MetLife

NFL. The group, which raised $10,000 in five days, will post three billboards calling for the GM's firing.

There are three home games left for Jets fans to voice their displeasure over a 1-8 season that will mark a fourth straight season without the playoffs. And now, there are three billboards placed in prime New Jersey locations to do the same exact thing.

Metro New York reported on Sunday that FireJohnIdzik.com had reached its stated goal of raising $10,000 to purchase a billboard near MetLife Stadium to pro-

John Idzik is under fire from Jets fans, who will put up three billboards, including one on I-80 at Exit 65, inset. / GETTY IMAGES, FIREJOHNIDZIK.COM

By the numbers

1,300

FireJohnIdzik.com gathered 1,300 Facebook followers in a week, as well as almost 1,000 Twitter followers.

mote their stated purpose of seeing general manager John Idzik fired. Now they've secured not only a location near the stadium for the static billboard message, but also two digital billboards nearby.

According to the four founders of the FireJohnIdzik.com website, there will be one static billboard right on Route 80 at Exit 65 in New Jersey, just a few minutes away from the Meadowlands. The static billboard will be up in time for the Jets' final two home games and will come down in mid-January. There will also be two digital billboards up for a similar period of time along Route 3, located within a half-mile of the stadium.

"This is not a story about a bunch of people wasting their money, as some in the media would like to portray it," site co-founder Jason Koepel told Metro. "This is a story about changing the face of fan activism in America. The billboards are nothing but a symbol that we rallied behind to show [owner] Woody Johnson that Jets fans now have an organized voice."

NFL power rankings | by Matt Burke

No. 1

Patriots
(7-2)

No team in the NFL was beating the Patriots team that played Sunday. Tom Brady and Rob Gronkowski are the most dangerous quarterback-tight end combo in the league.

No. 2

Cardinals
(7-1)

One reason why they're behind the Pats: Their lone loss this season came to the Broncos, the team the Pats blew out on Sunday.

No. 3

Broncos
(6-2)

The best part of every season for Peyton Manning since the turn of the century has been the game after he had to deal with a Bill Belichick defense.

No. 4

Eagles
(6-2)

Losing your starting quarterback in the first quarter and winning a road game against a quality foe falls into the category of "dealing well with adversity."

No. 5

Lions
(6-2)

Ask an average sports fan on the street what the Lions' record is right now and nine times out of 10 you'll get "4-4." They've played just one stinker.

No. 6

Seahawks
(5-3)

The Seahawks were on the verge of blowing out the winless Raiders on Sunday, leading 24-3 at the half. They wound up winning the game by six points.

No. 7

Colts
(6-3)

We now know that the Steelers are at least a solid football team, so the Colts' blowout loss to them in Week 8 wasn't as bad as it seemed.

No. 8

Steelers
(6-3)

Before we go nuts with the Steelers love, let's remember that their three-game win streak is due in part to the fact that they were all at home.

No. 9

Packers
(5-3)

Heading into the season, people were speculating Eddie Lacy could lead the league in fantasy points. He has just one 100-yard day.

No. 10

Cowboys
(6-3)

Jerry Jones wants Tony Romo to play in London so badly Sunday against the Jaguars that he "jokingly" offered up his wife's first-class seat on the plane.

NFL. Giants increasingly thin at corner with Amukamara injury

The Giants not only lost a game to the Colts on Monday night, they also lost one of the best players on their defense.

Head coach Tom Coughlin confirmed cornerback Prince Amukamara, in the midst of a breakout season, is done for the season with a torn biceps.

"I feel very badly for Prince Amukamara, particularly the quality of the year he was having, then to have this happen," Coughlin said in his conference call Monday. "He will recover, do well and come back, and we move on."

The Giants are increasingly thin in the secondary. Cornerbacks Trumaine McBride and Walter Thurmond were already out for the season.

"We did bring a young man [Mike Harris] in thinking we needed extra reinforcements last week," Coughlin said. "We'll probably have to do the same thing again, and we will certainly have to spend a lot of time bringing these new people to a point where they understand the basic concepts." METRO
